

7 POINTS

7 Points

By

Vladimir Borisov

Aryanist Association Publication
-132 Anno Hitleri-
-2021-

Introduction

You need to walk and talk like a Fascist, that way even as you go through the daily motions of your life you will be more dynamic, stronger and that will move the People and events around you toward the political community. Basically what I am trying to introduce here has been the mentality that this forum (IronMarch) has been created to put forward, hopefully I will have simplified and put into word what is actually a raw feeling and approach of its own. Most people have basically lost the raw feeling and allowed their ideas to slide into normalcy and irrelevance, so my goal is to illustrate how that can be retained and constantly revitalized, then becoming a norm in itself.

1. Speak the Truth

By the Truth I mean your gut and always. What you say without considering is what you actually say without any fancy sayings. There is a certain context and considerations of etiquette for everything and by no means should you force your 'opinion' into every conversation but there is absolutely no reason that you shouldn't dismantle the filthy kike culture everywhere you see it. If you want to smash political correctness you have to live accordingly, speak clearly unpretentiously and as polite or vulgar as is necessary to illustrate a point.

2. Don't bullshit yourself

We are right, our enemies are wrong. Learn to laugh as you raze their pathetic delusions and also learn to smile while everyone around you ridicules you. Be completely and absolutely confident in yourself and your principles and do not intellectualize about anything. Carefree, mocking, violent, reckless, relentless, absolute, fierce, heroic realism and all that; just do it.

3. You're preparing for a Revolution

Every hour that you waste is a point for our enemy. Listen to Mein Kampf while you take the train to work, network with local Nationalists, lift weights and do sports, make propaganda, learn vital skills for survival like mechanics, construction and agriculture. Also be consistent in your planning and thoughts that at some point in the near future all of our lives will be changed in the direction of a very bloody barbarism by the impending collapse of Western civilization and the Armageddon aftermath. You can only rely on yourself and your comrades, because EVERYONE secedes by default, and then only the strong survive. I know, you are probably cutting yourself on all this edge, but think about the condition you are in at this second. Can you tell me you are a Man, you are ready and that you shall thrive at the torch? If not then make it so.

4. Violence is good

Most people here believe that in a political and historical context but do not apply it to their lives. You shouldn't fear a fight, and you shouldn't opt out of it; you should wake up in the morning and pray for one. Physically and mentally prepare yourself for one whatever way you can, and not just to be ready 'just in case' but because your highest excitement and energy is elicited from and the real extent of your Manhood and Personhood is revealed by raw physical Struggle. Test yourself whenever given the opportunity and prove yourself worthy.

5. Anything can happen

Every one of those efforts I listed is worth investing time and money into even if you will not be able to see immediate results. Throw the right pitch and in a minute old enemies can become friends. Be open and endeavorous toward every opportunity that offers itself to you. When you catch yourself in a breeze of positive emotion and energy spend it on something worthwhile. When you are offered a job that you have never tried before, take it. Talk to different people and learn people's perspectives wants and needs, don't hesitate to talk to conservatives or leftists or anything either. I say this because many people here feel an unnecessary alienation, and that needs to end.

6. Our enemies are faggots

The left is insane the right is retarded. The left are weirdos and the right are blockheads. Mock them because they deserve to be mocked; but do not mock the People, mock the politicians. Understand the People's needs and why they believe in lies; herin is the key to revealing the truth to them. Plain speaking and common sense demolish everything; democracy, internationalism, humanitarianism, philo-semitism, market kikery and bureaucratic despondency alike. We are fighting the most rotten disgusting group of people conceivable, control the facts, direct the flow and their whole house of cards falls to pieces.

7. Hold the Banner high

Remember that your every action has to be an example, your very life has to be the standard. Your undertakings are your principles, your victories are your ideology. If you want to lead the People you have to prove and show yourself and be a superior type. That means never actually reaching such a standard but always sincerely struggling to attain it.

'The most certain way of ensuring victory is to march briskly and in good order against the enemy, always endeavoring to gain ground.'